First SQE2 assessment took place

The first SQE2 assessments took place last month with more than 730 candidates sitting it. The written assessments happened at 89 test centres in the UK and internationally, while the oral exams were held in Cardiff, London and Manchester.

Results for this sitting will be available from late August. As with SQE1, we will publish a short post-assessment report. This will cover overall candidate performance and the key results from the assessment, such as pass mark, pass rate and a report by the SQE Independent Reviewer.

Keeping SQE exam information confidential

Before they can sit an SQE assessment, each candidate must sign a confidentiality agreement. Although they can share, for example, what sitting the exams is like or the assessment day logistics, they cannot reveal any details about the exam content. Where we have evidence that a candidate has breached this agreement we will investigate and take action if appropriate.

Take a look at the Candidate Confidentiality Policy [<https://sqe.sra.org.uk/policies/candidate-confidentiality-policy>] to learn more.

SQE2 assessment marking and pass marks explained

SQE2 is made up of 16 assessments that test legal skills and knowledge - 12 written and four oral. It is marked based on professional judgements across a range of assessment criteria rather than a checklist approach.

SQE assessment exemptions for qualified lawyers

Exemptions from the SQE assessments are only available to qualified lawyers. This is someone who has a legal professional qualification which means they can practise in the UK (eg a Scottish solicitor) or an international jurisdiction.

Applications for exemptions will fall in to two broad categories:

1. Agreed exemptions where we have already given a legal qualification an exemption and all lawyers who have that qualification can apply for this. So far these only exist for SQE2.
2. An individual exemption based on:
 - a lawyer's legal qualification and
 - additional work experience and/or qualifications.

LPC route and our transitional arrangements

We have transitional arrangements in place to make sure those that were already on their way to becoming a solicitor don't lose out now the SQE has been introduced. This means someone already studying or training by 21 September 2021 could continue to qualify through the LPC route if they wish.

This includes anyone who has:

- a qualifying law degree / exempting law degree
- the Common Professional Examination / Graduate Diploma in Law (CPE/GDL)
- the Legal Practice Course
- a period of recognised training (PRT) - often known as a training contract.

If non-law students accepted an offer of a PRT before 1 September 2021, they must have started their CPE/GDL course by 31 August 2022 to take the LPC route. Any non-law students offered a training contract this year, will have to qualify through the SQE route.

Face-to-face events

Qualifying work experience - networking events for employers and work experience providers (various locations)

We are running face-to-face networking events in Manchester and Swansea. Join us to discuss how changes to the qualification process have created new opportunities for law firms and in-house teams in how they can train future solicitors.

Free to attend, they are open to employers or a work experience provider, such as a charity or law clinic. The events will offer an opportunity to:

- explore qualifying work experience - discussing opportunities and how to manage any risks
- input into our plans for evaluating the impact of the SQE and wider qualification changes
- network with other employers
- talk to the SQE team from the SRA and get answers to your questions
