

News

Quality of legal representation in the youth justice system

12 April 2022

The Institute for Crime and Justice Policy Research (ICPR), Birkbeck is conducting research on legal representation and advocacy in the youth justice system with the charity Just for Kids Law [<https://justforkidslaw.org/>]. The research, funded by the Dawes Trust, wants to identify whether, and what kinds of, interventions are needed to improve the quality of the work of criminal solicitors who advise and represent child suspects and defendants.

The national survey of criminal solicitors about working in the youth justice system [https://www.surveymonkey.co.uk/r/ICPR-

QualityOfLegalRepresentationInTheYouthJusticeSystem] is completely anonymous and takes approximately 15 minutes to complete. It will help ICPR and Just for Kids Law to determine what - if any - further knowledge, training and resources are required to enhance the quality of advice and legal representation provided by solicitors to children at the police station and in court.