

Fee calculator 2022/2023

This calculator will help you determine your firm's 2022/23 periodic fee and the practising certificate (PC) or registration fees of any individuals opted into your firm. Please note, that this will not calculate the fees for the authorisation of new firms.

The fees were sent for approval by the Legal Services Board on 25 July 2022.

6 September 2022

To calculate the 2022/23 periodic fee, we will take the turnover figure declared on the 2021/22 application. This will be based on the last closed accounts prior to 31 October 2021, e.g. April 2020 – March 2021.

Authorised signatories and organisation contacts can view the application submitted last year in mySRA under My Organisation - Application and Documents.

Information entered below is not submitted to or stored by us.

Practising certificate holders (include maternity, exclude registered European lawyers and registered foreign lawyers)

How much does an individual practising certificate cost?

Each practising certificate costs £286 (plus a contribution of £30 to the compensation fund) per holder.

Maternity leave or equivalent discount

What is the maternity leave discount?

A maximum of £119 is discounted from the fee. This discount depends on when the maternity or equivalent leave started in the practising year. Find out more detail on the maternity leave discount [/mysra/fees/archive-fees/#tab_865f2] .

Solicitors, registered European Lawyers and registered foreign lawyers qualify for this discount (excluding an application handling fee of £48) if:

- they started a period of statutory maternity or equivalent leave between 1 November 2021 and 31 October 2022, or
- they are on maternity or equivalent leave at the time of applying.

Registered European lawyers

How much does it cost for a registered European lawyer?

Registered European lawyers (REL) are each charged £286 (plus a contribution of £30 to the compensation fund).

UK-based registered foreign lawyers

How much does it cost for a UK-based registered foreign lawyer?

UK-based registered foreign lawyers are each charged £286 (plus a contribution of £30 to the compensation fund).

Non-UK-based registered foreign lawyers

How much does it cost for a non-UK-based registered foreign lawyer?

Registered foreign lawyers based mainly (more than 50% of their time) outside of England and Wales will have a reduced individual fee of £100 plus a contribution of £30 to the compensation fund.

Foreign branch offices

How much does it cost for a foreign branch office?

UK firms with branches outside England and Wales are charged a flat fee of £200 for each foreign branch.
