

SRA Update

Issue 125 - March 2024

- General updates [#tab_7b7a1]
- Compliance updates [#tab_7b7a2]

Welcome to the latest issue of SRA Update. Below you can find out more about our on-going review of consumer protection arrangements and how to get involved. We are also taking bookings for our SQE virtual conference, and are soon to open this year's Keeping of the Roll exercise. If you work in-house, you will find a whole section dedicated to you and the unique challenges you face. In particular you can find out about the range of new resources we are today publishing to help you in your day-to-day role. We are publishing these materials in draft format before they are finalised, as we are keen to give as many of you who work in house as possible the chance to review them and advise us on their content. Please do take a look and let us know your thoughts.

Review of consumer protection measures under way

[<https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/consumer-protection-review-launched/>]

We have launched a review of consumer protection arrangements in response to shifting risks in the sector. The review focuses on how to reduce the risk that something goes wrong at a regulated law firm, while finding the right balance between protections and potential impact on the cost of legal services. Included in this review is consideration of compensation fund arrangements.

Qualified Lawyers Transfer Scheme (QLTS) admission deadline

[<https://www.sra.org.uk/become-solicitor/qualified-lawyers/qlts/>]

Lawyers from other jurisdictions that have QTLS MCT and have passed the SQE2 only have until 31 March 2024 (inclusive) to apply for admission as a solicitor. This includes those who took SQE2 in October and will get results on 20 February. Those who have failed the SQE2, or not taken it at all, will have to restart their SQE qualification route.

Focus on in-house

New resources for in-house solicitors

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/views-in-house-solicitors/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/views-in-house-solicitors/)

Responding to feedback we have received over the past 12 months, we have published a new suite of draft guidance and resources designed specifically for in-house solicitors. Learn more about these materials, what issues they cover, and how you can provide feedback on the content.

Advice for your employer

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/understanding-in-house-solicitors-professional-obligations-employer/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/understanding-in-house-solicitors-professional-obligations-employer/)

As part of our suite of proposed new materials to support the in-house community we have published draft guidance designed for you to share with your employer. This material explains a solicitor's professional obligations, outlines how these may impact what they can or can't do, and provides advice on how an organisation which employs solicitors can support them in their role.

Identifying in-house clients

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/identifying-client-working-in-house-guidance/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/identifying-client-working-in-house-guidance/)

With many in-house solicitors working within large umbrella organisations, group structures, or organisations that provide services to third parties, it is not always easy to identify exactly who your client is for any given legal matter. Our new draft guidance seeks to provide you with support in this area and in understanding what requirements follow depending on who the client is.

We have published draft guidance which aims to help you better understand your professional obligations when you are concerned about actions or decisions taken by the organisation that employs you. This includes escalating and reporting your concerns internally, and when you should consider making a report to external authorities.

Working on internal investigations

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/internal-investigations/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/internal-investigations/)

Relevant to both in-house solicitors, and those working in law firms, we have published draft guidance designed to help you understand and manage regulatory risks and issues associated with conducting an internal investigation.

Welcome to the latest issue of Compliance News. This month we have our updated sectoral risk assessment that outlines all the major issues to be aware of when it comes to legal services and guarding against money laundering. There have also been further changes to the high-risk third countries list that you might need to be aware of, there's support available for firms dealing with the Government's financial sanctions regime and catch up with our recent webinars on money laundering risk assessments.

Sectoral risk assessment updated

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/research-publications/aml-risk-assessment/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/research-publications/aml-risk-assessment/)

Our money laundering sectoral risk assessment is a key weapon for both us and firms in the fight to keep criminal cash out of legal services. Practices should have particular regard to it when creating their own firm-wide risk assessments. We have recently updated our assessment, which now includes a new section on sanctions.

High-risk third countries list amended

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/sra-update-124-high-risk-countries/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/sra-update-124-high-risk-countries/)

High-risk third countries are no longer listed in the money laundering regulations. Firms must now check the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) website for the list of countries where specific enhanced due diligence measures are required.

Financial sanctions regime – support for firms

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/financial-sanctions-advice/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/financial-sanctions-advice/)

Our financial sanctions survey last year revealed that more than 1,000 firms potentially do not have the required controls in place. We have therefore written to those firms to offer support and advice to make sure they are getting things right, for example with guidance on creating a firm-wide risk assessment.
